

Quite a lot of oranges were washed ashore on the beach near Tillamook bar this week. It is supposed that some of the large passenger steamers plying between San Francisco and Portland met with rough weather and had her deck load washed away.